

Class forums

As a British Council student, your child will be a member of his/her private online class forum, providing British Council students an opportunity to join an online learning community and get the most out of their learning experience at the British Council. This will include such activities as:

- downloading notes and worksheets from their class
- uploading homework and other assignments for review by their teacher and classmates
- practising their English through real-life interaction with their classmates and teacher
- enjoying the learning process by being an active part of their class and learning community

Membership of the forum is free of charge to British Council students. We encourage all students to join these forums as we firmly believe they provide a safe and productive learning environment for our students.

Parental Consent and Terms of Use

To ensure a safe and productive online learning experience, we moderate all forums and parents are encouraged to view the forum themselves to see how the students are supplementing their in-class study. Young learners are asked to follow the “House Rules” when using the forums (viewable on this link) and we ask parents and guardians of young learner students to agree to the following terms of use below:

- All postings should be in English.
- Passwords should be kept secure and not shared online or elsewhere.
- Postings must be respectful and polite, containing nothing abusive, profane or aggressive in nature.
- Your child must not post any defamatory or illegal material of any nature. This includes text, graphics, video, and/or audio. Posting a message with the intention of committing or condoning an illegal act is strictly prohibited.
- Your child must not violate, plagiarise, or infringe on the rights of third parties including copyright, trademark, trade secret, privacy, personal, publicity, or proprietary rights.

The British Council is not responsible for the content of external links.

Copyright: The copyright for content on class forums is held by the British Council. Where material has been provided by other organisations, copyright ownership is indicated on the relevant pages. While every effort is made to check copyright prior to publication, if you see material on this site for which you believe you hold the copyright, please let us know immediately.

Liability Notice: These forums may contain content which does not derive from the British Council. Any views expressed in such content by individuals who are employed by, or contracted to, the British Council may not represent the views of the British Council and the British Council shall not be responsible or liable for any such content or for the consequences of the use of it.

Jurisdiction: The English courts will have non-exclusive jurisdiction over any claim arising from, or related to, a visit to this site although we retain the right to bring proceedings against you for breach of these conditions in your country of residence or any other relevant country.

These Terms of Use and any dispute or claim arising out of or in connection with them or their subject matter or formation (including non-contractual disputes or claims) shall be governed by and construed in accordance with the law of England and Wales.

Click here to download and print a copy of this document for your own reference

- ☐ I agree and give consent to my child to participate in the online forum subject to the terms of use stated above.
- ☐ I do not agree to the above terms of use stated above.

In order to ensure a safe and productive online learning experience, breaches of these terms of use, may result in students being excluded from their class forums. In the unlikely event of this happening, we will consult with you first. If you have any queries, comments or complaints regarding this Site or these Terms of Use, please contact us.